VI. METHODOICAL INDICATIONS ON THE DEVELOPMENT OF DISCIPLINE

Guidelines for the development of discipline

The main types of classes in the study of the discipline "International Criminal Law" are lectures and practical exercises.

Lectures are focused on the most important theoretical and problematic issues of international criminal law, are designed to guide students in the proposed material, to lay the scientific and methodological basis for further independent work of students, to promote the further development of their analytical thinking, to develop their own positions on the issues discussed.

Practical (seminar) classes are designed to orient students not only to acquire new knowledge, but also to improve their professional competencies.

Of particular importance for the professional training of students is independent work on the course. It includes: preparation for practical exercises, writing an essay, solving practical (situational) problems, preparing for a test.

For a deeper study of the issues of each topic, the student is recommended to use the recommended sources in the list of references.

Practical classes are conducted with the group and are built as a conversation-discussion on each question of the plan. When studying a course, it is necessary to study the topics in the sequence in which they are given in the program and plans for practical training. It is advisable to start working through each of the questions with an introduction to the content of the relevant section of the course program and reference to the sources indicated in the list of references.

Actively working on practical exercises and performing tasks for independent work, students must learn to work with sources in the process of theoretical problem solving and identify practical skills in the use of substantive and procedural law.

Methods of testing students' knowledge:

1. Colloquium (PP-2). Means of control of the mastering of educational material of the discipline "International Criminal Law", section or sections of the discipline, organized as a training session in the form of an interview with the teacher of students.

2. Writing an essay (PR-3) involves analyzing the problem posed on the basis of studying the regulatory legal acts, basic literature, additional literature, materials of judicial practice in the subject “International Criminal Law”, identifying existing gaps, problems, contradictions regulation of international criminal law, their assessment, as well as proposing their own ways of resolving them.

3. The solution of practical (situational) tasks (PR-11), which shows the degree to which students have practical skills. Problem solving is the traditional and most important method of conducting practical classes, therefore, it is necessary to dwell in greater detail on the consideration of the main approaches to problem solving.

In the process of solving problems, algorithms of legal thinking are mastered, without mastering which successful solution of practical problems is impossible. These algorithms include:

- 1) the study of the specific situation (relationship), requiring a legal justification or decision;
- 2) legal assessment or qualification of this situation (relationship);
- 3) search for relevant regulations and judicial practice;
- 4) interpretation of legal norms to be applied;
- 5) the decision to resolve a specific given situation;
- 6) the rationale for the decision, its formulation in writing;
- 7) projecting the decision on the reality, forecasting the process of its execution, the achievement of the goals for which it was made.

Task conditions include all the factual circumstances necessary to make a definite decision on a controversial issue formulated in the text of the problem. The solution of the problem must be recorded in a notebook intended for making such records. When solving a problem, its condition need not be rewritten; it is enough to indicate the number of the task, and then formulate your answers to the questions posed in the problem.

In response to the question (s) posed in the task, it is necessary to give a reasonable assessment of the proposed situation from the point of view of the current legislation. When solving problems, it is unacceptable to be limited to an unambiguous answer "yes" or "no."

The form of the final control of students' knowledge is a test (in the 8 / 7 semester).

When preparing for a test, a student may use a list of sample test questions for self-examination as a guide.

The residual knowledge test allows you to:

- find out the level of mastering students' curriculum;
- assess the formation of students of certain knowledge and skills to use them, necessary and sufficient for future independent legal work;
- to evaluate the ability of students to think creatively and logically correct the answers to the questions posed.

In preparation for offset goes the repetition of the material covered. To simplify the preparation process, we recommend preparing and recording the answers to the questions, as well as mentioning the most difficult ones, which cause difficulties in preparation. It is also advisable to make a glossary of basic terms (concepts) for each topic.

During the preparation for the test, the student must systematize the entire body of knowledge obtained both in the course of the International Criminal Law discipline and in other related disciplines (international law, international private law, criminal law, etc.).

The test is held in the form of an oral survey - interview (PP-1)

Interview (UO-1) is a means of control, organized as a special conversation between a teacher and a student on topics related to the discipline being studied, and designed to ascertain the student's knowledge of a specific section, topic, problem, etc.

Oral survey (interview) includes at least two questions with the preliminary preparation of the student (no more than 30 minutes). Also, in the course of testing practical skills in the discipline “International Criminal”, students need to solve a practical task (up to 40 minutes are allowed for its solution).

Methodical recommendations in preparation for practical exercises

In preparation for the practical classes on the course “International Criminal”, it is necessary to familiarize yourself with the topic of the practical lesson, to study sources from recommended and additional literature.

Students' speeches at practical classes represent interviews of a teacher with students (PP-2 - colloquium) using handwritten outline, report outline, outlines, etc. In the course of the report, the student should state the main points of the question under consideration, pay attention to its debatable aspects, be ready to answer additional questions from the teacher and the audience. It is not considered as a report and the continuous reading of a previously prepared outline cannot be evaluated. It is necessary to process the studied material and highlight the important. The latter should form the basis of the notes. For convenience, the student can make graphs, tables, etc.

The student's speaking time is determined by the teacher, but cannot be longer than 15 minutes.

Approximate topics for discussion at the colloquium and criteria for evaluating the oral response to the practical lesson on the course “International Criminal Law” are given in Appendix 2.

Guidelines for solving problems

In order to correctly solve problems on a specific subject of the discipline “International Criminal Law”, a student must first study the current legislation, lecture and educational materials, monographic literature recommended by the plan of seminars and practical classes. The solution of tasks in a practical lesson consists in the student's statement of the circumstances of the case, the main question of the problem, the questions on which the decision depends, the answers to them. The decision should be detailed, consistent, reasoned, supported by references to the actual circumstances of the case. The answer to the question of the problem involves proving the student's chosen solution.

If the task has already given the decision of the court or other authority, it is required to evaluate its validity and legality.

In addition, it is necessary to answer the theoretical questions posed in the problem in connection with the proposed situation.

The solution of the problem should contain:

- a summary of the circumstances of the case;
- legal assessment of a legal matter;
- references to specific norms;
- conclusions and their rationale for the issue decided in the task.

The solution of practical (situational) tasks is made in writing and is submitted to the teacher for verification.

The approximate list of practical (situational) tasks:

Task 1.

The Prosecutor of the International Criminal Court was provided with information from State F, a party to the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, on facts of a massive violation of the rights of one of the ethnic groups in the territory of the neighboring state E, also a party to the Statute. During the investigation, the prosecutor established:

1) the actions were committed by citizens of a third state not participating in the Statute;

2) actions taken prior to the entry into force of the Statute for States F and E;

3) the actions were committed by representatives of the UN peacekeeping contingent, in respect of which the Resolution of the UN Security Council was adopted (Chapter 7 of the UN Charter) in accordance with Art. 16 of the Statute;

4) the responsibility for these actions is provided for by the legislation of State E, but its law enforcement agencies have not taken any action to bring the perpetrators to justice.

Assess these circumstances from the perspective of the competence of the International Criminal Court. What actions can a prosecutor take?

Criteria for assessing practical (situational) tasks are given in Appendix 2.

Guidelines for writing an essay

Writing an essay involves analyzing the problem posed on the basis of studying regulatory legal acts, basic literature, additional literature on the subject “International Criminal Law”, identifying existing gaps, problems, contradictions of legal regulation, evaluating them, and proposing their own ways permissions.

The volume of the essay should not exceed 10 pages. The interval is 1.5, the font size is 14, the margins: left - 3 cm, right - 1.5 cm, upper and lower - 1.5 cm. Pages should be numbered. Paragraph indent from the beginning of the line is 1.5 cm.

The deadline for submitting an essay is the penultimate practical lesson in the discipline. The essay is given to the teacher. After checking the text, the student submits an essay in a class held during the week. According to the results of the test a certain grade is given to the student.

In assessing the essay, the correspondence of the content to the chosen topic, the clarity of the structure of the work, the ability to work with scientific literature, the ability to pose a problem and analyze it, the ability to think logically, proficiency in professional terminology, and literacy are taken into account.

Approximate topics and criteria for assessing the essay for the course “International Criminal Law” are given in Appendix 2.

Methodical recommendations to prepare for offset

In preparation for offset goes the repetition of the material covered. To simplify the preparation process, we recommend preparing and recording the answers to the questions, as well as mentioning the most difficult ones, which cause difficulties in preparation. It is also advisable to make a dictionary of basic terms (concepts) of the course “International Criminal Law” for each topic.

During the preparation for the test, the student must systematize the whole body of knowledge obtained both in the course “International Criminal Law” and in other related disciplines (theory of state and law, international law, international private law, criminal law and etc.).

A sample list of questions for the test on the subject “International Criminal Law”, as well as the criteria for evaluating the oral response at the test are given in Appendix 2.
